- In my capacity of Deputy Director and Member of the scientific committee of the Réseau de recherche sur les opérations de la paix (ROP), I was an instructor for the training project entitled "Activer le potentiel des femmes" (Activating Women's Potential). This 15-month training aimed at preparing 27 women from the Sahel countries (Burkina Faso, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Chad and Côte d'Ivoire) to fully participate to the current and future peace processes and thus contribute to the stability of their region. The training identified 27 women who already distinguished themselves by their implication in conflict resolution in their community but who are not social elites or political elites in their countries. The training aimed to facilitate their networking and hence improving their active and impactful participation in peace processes. It also allows them to train other women and hence, widening their circle of women actively participating to the peace processes in the region.
